

RETIRED FARM OWNER SUFFERS FATAL STROKE

William Albert Sowers, 77, McKnightstown, Dies Early This Morning.

William Albert Sowers, prominent retired farmer, died suddenly at his home in McKnightstown this morning at 7:45 o'clock. Arising in his usual good health today, Mr. Sowers, who was in his seventy-fourth year, was repairing a coal bin, when he suffered a heart attack.

His wife discovered him lying unconscious in a pile of wood, and immediately sent for a physician, but Mr. Sowers died before medical attention could be administered.

Mr. Sowers, the oldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sowers, was born in Menallen township, near Bendersville. When he was 17 years old, his parents moved to the old Sowers Mill in Franklin township, where the deceased resided until his marriage in 1874 to Miss Clara O. Bushey.

After his marriage, Mr. Sowers moved to a farm near Oртanna, where he resided until 1912, when he retired, moving to McKnightstown, where he had since lived.

MANY TOURING PARTIES HERE

Knights Templar of Philadelphia and Macabee Delegation Visit in Gettysburg Over Week-end.

Gettysburg was host over the week-end to many touring parties. More than 100 Macabees from Washington, D. C., persons in charge of the arrangements for the annual convocation of that order in the Capital City in July, formed the largest contingent to visit Gettysburg and its historic environs.

On Sunday afternoon eighty members of St. John's Commandery No. 4, Knights Templar, Philadelphia, and their wives arrived in a motor cavalcade, headed by two motorcycle patrolmen, as escorts. On Sunday evening, 28 Knights Templar from Kensington Commandery No. 28 arrived by train.

Today both groups were taken over the field, and left this afternoon for Harrisburg for the annual state convocation of their order. Gettysburg Knights Templar numbering about 100 plan to attend the Harrisburg sessions, leaving here Tuesday morning.

Besides these groups of visitors, there was a delegation of New Jersey and Pennsylvania hotelmen and their wives, traveling over the route of the Historical Tour in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE ON SUNDAY, MAY 31

Details of the annual Memorial Day celebration of colored residents of Gettysburg next Sunday afternoon were announced this morning.

Colored residents and all colored children are being urged to meet at the Elks' home, West High street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to participate in a parade to the Sons of Good Will cemetery. The parade is to start at 2:30 o'clock.

Samuel Stanton will be chief marshal with Basil Biggs, scoutmaster, of York, as aide. Colored Boy Scouts of York will lead the parade and furnish music for the marchers. Members of the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post have been asked to participate.

Dr. George W. Bowles, York, will be the orator of the day, and W. Jestin Carter, Harrisburg, also will speak.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the celebration consists of William Biggs, R. H. Thomas, J. J. Mathews and Walter Carter.

HOTEL MEN LIKE HOSPITALITY HERE

Gettysburg Entertains Distinguished Gathering of Hotel Managers Over Week-end.

Gettysburg, playing host to a merry group of hotel managers from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, added to its reputation for hospitality and congeniality and went on record as being the "biggest little city in the state with the greatest attraction America has to offer to the traveling public," according to the consensus of opinion expressed by the touring hotel men who left Sunday noon, after spending the week-end as the guest of Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg. It was the wind-up of a four-day tour of historic centers in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

While no elaborate arrangements were made to entertain the guests here the program was arranged to meet with the approval of the hotel men whose principal vocation consists of "doing for others" rather than being made the "guest of honor." And Gettysburg presented its attractions and extended the hand of fellowship in just this manner.

Police Escort
A delegation of Gettysburgians motored to Chambersburg Saturday afternoon and met the touring party at the Hotel Gettysburg.

At the conclusion of the Chambersburg visit, the caravan left for Gettysburg. At Caledonia, state police met the hotel men and their ladies and led the procession into Gettysburg. Private Russell W. Frutey, of the local substation of state police, was in charge of the escort.

Arriving in Gettysburg, the visitors, tired and a bit weary after four-days away from their desks, were made to "feel at home" at the Hotel Gettysburg. A restful social hour was spent in the hotel parlors and on the balconies after which the tourists retired.

At seven forty-five o'clock Sunday morning, they were guests at breakfast. At nine o'clock they were escorted over the battlefield and at 11 o'clock they left for York, headquarters. (Continued on Second Page)

NAMED DELEGATE TO HOTEL CONFAB

Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg, was appointed alternate delegate to the American Hotel Association Conference, to be held in Colorado Springs, Colorado, June 5 and 6. Coolidge Back, Fully Recovered

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, May 25.—President Coolidge, apparently completely recovered from an attack of indigestion suffered Saturday, returned to the White House today from a week-end cruise on the Mayflower and plunged immediately into his daily routine work.

Coolidge was described as feeling well and this was attested by a long engagement list including many visitors who wished to shake hands with him.

Cambria County Man Electrocuted

(By Associated Press.)
Rockview, May 25.—John Milaskie, of Cambria county, was electrocuted at the penitentiary here today. Taken to the chair at 7 o'clock he was given two contacts and pronounced dead at 7:12.

Milaskie, who was 34 years old, was accompanied to the chair by the Rev. Fr. Angelus, of State College, and displayed unusual stolidity.

The crime for which he was electrocuted was the murder of Mrs. Annie Turcy in 1922.

WORK MOVING FAST ON FIELD

New Athletic Field For College Expected to be in Good Condition For Dedication.

Work on the new athletic field at Gettysburg College, which will be dedicated this fall to the memory of students of the local institution who served in the World War, is progressing nicely, although somewhat hampered by lack of funds. When completed, the field will be one of the finest in this section of the country, and rank on an equal and above athletic fields of colleges in Gettysburg's division.

The large field, which measures 660 by 330 feet, has been planted in grass, which is coming along nicely, and already gives the appearance of a green carpet over the tract. The rain of the week-end gave growing impetus to the sod, and by fall the field is expected to be in ideal condition for football contests.

Is Well Drained
So well is the field drained that the severe rain of Sunday did not leave a trace on the gravel, the tile subsurface drainage system apparently functioning at its best. At no place over the broad expanse was there indication of "washing."

The new field is so large that the baseball diamond and football gridiron will be entirely separate. An ornamental, as well as utilitarian, wire fence will enclose the field and stands.

On the south side of the field permanent stands will be erected, which will house showers and lockers for the athletes.

The new field to be known as Memorial Field will be dedicated in connection with the Gettysburg-Lehigh football game here October 3. The first home game with St. John's College will be played on Nixon Field September 27.

Dr. Roberts is a graduate of the University of Maryland, practicing at Durham, North Carolina, where the newlyweds will reside. The bride attended Peabody Institute, Baltimore, and is an accomplished musician.

High Seniors Are Safe In Capital

C., arrived in the Capital City at 11 o'clock, this morning, according to word received here this afternoon. The trip was made without any untoward incident. A short stop was taken at Frederick, and luncheon was eaten at Bethesda, Maryland. The party is registered at the Metropolitan Hotel.

SEMINARY FOUR CLOSES SEASON

Enviable Reputation Established by Local Quartet in 80 Public Appearances During Year.

The present musical season now drawing to a close for the Seminary Male Quartet has been an eventful one. The organization has made eighty public appearances this school year, being heard in concert from the Atlantic Ocean to the Great Lakes, by a total audience of at least fifty thousand people. Generous publicity has been afforded by the newspapers wherever the quartet appeared and press reports were commendatory.

The western trip in October, when the organization sang as the official quartet for the convention of the United Lutheran Church in Chicago, resulted in thirty-five appearances. Seven appearances were made in and around Philadelphia during January. From February 20th to 25th the quartet was heard in Greater New York, singing eleven times, including three radio appearances and a test record for the Victor Talking Machine Company. Notable concerts during the season were those sung in Akron and Wooster, Ohio; Hagerstown, Maryland, and York and Gettysburg. The quartet also had the opportunity to sing before the student-bodies of Wittenberg and Wooster Colleges in Ohio.

Radio Broadcasting
Perhaps the unique work of the quartet was the frequent radio broadcasting. The organization was heard four times from Chicago, stations W E B H, W M A C, W L S; from station W F L, Philadelphia, and in New York City—stations W J Z, W H N, and W E A F—the finest and most powerful broadcasting station in the country. As a result of this, reports have shown that the quartet has not only been heard over the East, but as far south as North Carolina and Kentucky, and as far west as Colorado. Being heard in eighty public appearances, including eight radio appearances, from these large stations, places this organization in a unique field among male quartets. It would hardly be presumptuous to say that the Seminary Male Quartet of Gettysburg has the distinction of having been heard by more people than any other Lutheran musical organization in America this year.

The personnel of the organization has been the same the past two years—T. Benton Peery, first tenor; Ralph C. Robinson, second tenor; Felix G. Robinson, first bass; Carl R. Simon, second bass; with J. Herbert Springer and Hugh E. Yost, accompanists.

NO WORD FROM CAPT. AMUNDSEN

Mingled Expressions of Optimism and Pessimism Voiced by Explorers and Aviators.

(By Associated Press.)
New York, May 25.—Mingled expressions of pessimism and optimism are voiced by explorers and aviators here regarding the fate of the Amundsen polar expedition. The Norwegian explorer and his companions have not been heard from since they left Spitzbergen for the pole in two airplanes last Thursday. Persons most familiar with Captain Amundsen and polar exploration see nothing alarming in his failure to return to his base in 24 hours as originally planned.

No concerted plans for a relief party have been made, but the American expedition of Donald MacMillan is leaving Boston for the Arctic in June and the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles and Shenandoah may be utilized in case of necessity. Commander MacMillan already has expressed his intention of going to the rescue provided there is a call.

Some explorers fear a forced landing may have injured the men or damaged the planes or both. It was pointed out, however, that the expedition carried food sufficient for a month and that at the expiration of that time the party should be in territory where it could find northern game in case the explorers were forced to walk back to their base.

Wind and Rain-Storm Follows In Wake of Hottest Day of Season; Trees Are Uprooted

Barn On Deatrick Farm North Of Town Is Demolished; Motorist Is Trapped By Fallen Trees; Adams County Escapes Severe Storm That Sweeps Over State.

A barn was partially demolished, a number of large trees throughout the county were uprooted and the temperature dropped 57 degrees over the week-end, in an exhibition of the most freakish weather Gettysburg and Adams county have experienced in many years. Crops generally escaped serious damage.

Sweltering Adams countians, Saturday; frozen Adams countians today, in brief, tells the story of the mixture of climate which was visited upon this section of Pennsylvania over the week-end.

Following in the wake of the hottest day so far this summer on Saturday, came a violent wind storm at midnight Saturday night, followed by some rain. At times the wind reached cyclonic proportions.

LOCAL MAN WEDS; GOES TO EUROPE

Dr. John Rogers Musselman and Bride of Baltimore Leave Today For Eight Months Tour.

Married in Baltimore, Saturday afternoon, to Miss Paula Wilson, son city, Dr. John Rogers Musselman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Elmer Musselman, Baltimore street, and his bride sailed today for Europe where they will spend eight months.

The marriage was solemnized at St. Stephen's Chapel, Baltimore, Saturday afternoon, with only members of the immediate families attending. Immediately after the ceremony, a reception to a few guests was held at the home of the bride.

Doctor Musselman, a graduate of Gettysburg College, class of 1910, has been teaching mathematics at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for the last five years. Prior to that time he taught at Gettysburg Academy, the University of Illinois and the University of St. Louis. He received his degree at Johns Hopkins, after graduating from Gettysburg College. He is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity here.

Doctor Musselman entered the service of his country as a first lieutenant on May 25, 1918, serving in the statistic branch of the general staff at Washington, D. C., until his discharge at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, September 20, 1919.

While in Europe, Doctor Musselman plans a course of study in mathematics, after which he will return to his duties at Johns Hopkins.

TWO PATIENTS LEAVE HOSPITAL

Men, Well Advanced in Years, at Local Institution For Several Months, Are Discharged.

Two men, both well advanced in years, who had been patients at the Annie M. Warner hospital for a number of months, were discharged from the institution over the week-end, both almost fully recovered. They were Robert Allison, Emmitsburg, who was admitted to the hospital last October, and Charles Frey, Lancaster, who was admitted as a patient last December.

Mr. Allison, who is in the eighties, suffered a fracture of his hip in a fall, which necessitated considerable treatment, and Mr. Frey was struck by a machine while walking on the Taneytown road, December 19, and suffered fractures of both legs. In addition his right hand was broken, and his scalp badly lacerated.

Stewart Dixon, 17, of near New Oxford, also was discharged. Young Dixon was kicked by a mule several weeks ago, suffering a ruptured kidney. An operation was performed at the hospital in which the kidney was removed. He is reported to be improving nicely.

Patients admitted to the hospital over the week-end include Mrs. McClellan Starnes and daughter, Aspers R. D., and Mrs. Joseph Pfeiffer, McSherrystown.

GRADUATE AT HOSPITAL

Miss Mary M. Miller and Miss Edna Mae Yohe, of New Oxford, and Miss Helen Evangeline Hoffman, of Biglerville, were members of the graduation class for nurses at the Harrisburg Hospital, who participated in commencement exercises there Thursday and Friday.

Barn Demolished
The barn on the farm of Lawrence Deatrick, Harrisburg road, several miles north of town, was partly demolished by the rush of the wind. Before the barn, a wooden structure, fell, the fence around the barnyard was blown away, and several head of cattle escaped the falling timbers, all of which fell in the yard where the cattle had been resting.

Several horses were imprisoned in their stalls in the barn, and held captive until Sunday morning when the debris was removed sufficient to permit their release. None of the horses was injured.

Mr. Deatrick could not be reached this morning, but his loss is expected to exceed $1,500.

While the wind was rushing across the county late Saturday night and early Sunday morning, trees were whipped from their roots and flung lengthwise on the ground and across roads in several places.

Has Narrow Escape
Ben Carter, colored, had a narrow escape from serious injury or worse while the storm was at its height. Driving toward Gettysburg on the Harrisburg road, Carter barely missed running his machine into a large oak tree which was blown directly in the path of his car. An instant or two later, another tree fell directly behind his machine.

Chester Bell, Hunterstown, and other motorists, driving on the Harrisburg road at the time, discovered Carter's plight, and assisted him in removing the large trees from the roadway.

Only a little rain fell during the night, but after the blow there came a decided change in temperature. From a temperature of 96 degrees Saturday afternoon, the thermometer fell slowly early Sunday morning and during last night had reached 39 degrees, the lowest temperature recorded by Colonel E. B. Cope's official thermometer.

20 Apple Trees Uprooted
According to reports from Tyson Brothers, orchardists, Flora Dale, twenty apple trees, all in a strip, were uprooted by the severe wind late Saturday night. Other orchardists in the county are said to have suffered damage.

Although there was a heavy rainfall in Gettysburg and throughout the county on Sunday afternoon, this section of the state missed the heavy precipitation of Sunday afternoon which visited other parts of this state and Maryland.

From Carlisle to Harrisburg, an unusually heavy rain storm was felt Sunday afternoon, while in Maryland, from Hagerstown to Baltimore, rain, hail and snow fell. In Baltimore, hail and snow were piled up to a depth of three feet in some of the streets. Much damage to crops, orchards and property was reported in Maryland.

Philadelphia, May 25.—Pennsylvania shivered today from the coldest May weather in many years. Snow and sleet were reported from different parts of the state. Bellefonte reported two inches of snow and freezing temperature. The weather bureau reported a minimum temperature of 34 degrees at Scranton and Pittsburgh. Harrisburg reported 38 degrees.

Philadelphia experienced an extreme change in temperature when the mercury dropped from Saturday's maximum of 96 to 44 at 6 a. m. today.

INJURED PILOT ENTERS CLASSIC

Jerry Wonderlich, Hollywood, Seriously Injured One Year Ago, Enters Altoona Race Again.

Altoona, May 25.—The jinx is defied by that most debonair of the world's great racing drivers, Jerry Wonderlich. Affectionately dubbed the "sheik of Hollywood" by the other famous speed pilots, he has entered for the 250-mile classic on June 13 here at the Altoona speedway, where he was seriously injured, almost killed, in a crash just one year ago.

Fred J. Wagner, of Los Angeles, internationally known starter and sportsman, who is the dictator of the renowned clashes here, brought Wonderlich's entry from Charlotte, N. C., where Jerry raced on Confederate Memorial Day, but was forced to the background because of engine trouble. Roaring through life on the great board ovals at speeds around 140 miles an hour, shaking hands with the old grim reaper every minute of their battle for the rich purses and honors, the kings of speed have many pet superstitions, but the jinx has the high throne in the hard luck hierarchy. It is this monarch that grinning Jerry treats so irreverently when he signs to compete here on Flag Day.

Reaper Loses Edge But the premier drivers in their gossiping along gasoline alley while tuning their cars at the track garages, do it out that things still go by threes, and that the grim reaper's blade has lost its edge so far as the Altoona speedway is concerned. Only June 13, in itself an omen, can tell whether or not during the course of the terrific contest that a cloud of dust will rise into the air as one of those gallant heroes of speed crashes off the board course, or to the dirt safety apron, which is really for the safety of spectators, or huge timbers flying into the air like match sticks as one goes over the steep outer rim. If either happens, it means but one thing—one less of the great pilots lives to exult in the victorious gamble speed.

Bluff, boyish Howdy Wilcox was the first to wager and lose his life in the gamble when the speedway was opened on Labor Day, 1923. Wonderlich was the second on the list of the jinx, but he survived, though had-

STOCK REPORT

(By Associated Press.) New York, May 25.—Stock prices resumed their upward movement with fresh vigor as the new week opened today. New high records for the year were established by a diversified assortment of shares. Oil issues worked higher. Speculative interest later shifted rapidly from group to group and combined with outburst of profit taking gave the market an irregular appearance. Call money opened at three and three-fourths per cent.

Carrigan, the managing director.

Leaving Friday morning the hotelmen motored to Morristown, Hackettstown, Washington and Phillipsburg, to Easton and to Bethlehem, through territory made sacred in the hearts of Americans by Revolutionary War events. W. L. Jones, president-manager of the Bethlehem Hotel, was host to the party at a dinner at his hotel. After visiting neighboring spots of interest, the party journeyed on to Allentown where they were entertained for a short time by Elmer E. Heimbach, at the Hotel Allen, and where Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Hinkle, of the Hotel Traylor, joined the party for the remainder of the trip. The hotelmen continued to Reading where the night was spent with Peter Klein, manager of the Hotel Berkshire.

Visit Harrisburg Breakfast Saturday morning was taken with Manager J. E. C. Umble, of the Mansion House, who is chairman of the board of governors of the tour association.

Continuing the journey after visits at Wernersville and Lebanon, the party arrived at Harrisburg Saturday noon and were dinner guests of B. F. Welty, manager of the Penn-Harris Hotel. After visiting other hotelmen in Harrisburg and Carlisle, the caravan set out for Chambersburg where they were guests at a dinner given by W. A. Leech, proprietor of the Hotel Washington.

BIGLERVILLE WINS AWARDS

Cinder and Track Men of County High School Team Win New Laurels at Lancaster and Shippensburg.

Biglerville H. S. Varsity Track Team journeyed to Lancaster to participate in the 4th Interscholastic Track and Field Meet which was held at F. and M. Academy. Sixty high schools and preparatory schools with approximately 500 contestants were present to battle for honors.

Biglerville High School was represented by Ivan Taylor, (captain of the team), Vernard Group, Walter Rinehart and Harold Slaybaugh. Each member of the team was awarded a gold medal for winning the relay, while the school was presented with a shield for having the championship relay team in class C. In order to win this event it was necessary to defeat Royersford High School, the school which defeated Biglerville for first place at the Penn Relays, four weeks ago at Philadelphia. The Biglerville lads made a new record for themselves by running the mile relay in 3.44. In addition to this honor Captain Taylor won the 220 and 880 yard dashes. The time for the former was 22 seconds and the latter 2.06. By winning these three events he was declared to be the second high scorer of the meet.

The Biglerville team won a silver loving cup for the championship of their class.

In the Shippensburg Tri-County Meet, Clyde Orner, of Biglerville, was the highest scorer of the meet, with a total of 17½ points, by winning the 100, 220 yard dashes, the running broad jump and his part of the winning relay team of his class.

The 2nd relay team was composed of the following men: C. Orner, (captain), L. Kaufman, D. Kennedy, G. Morrison. Other individual scorers were: L. Kaufman, 440 yard dash; D. Weaver, 2 mile run; D. Kennedy, high jump; C. Bricker, shot put. The prizes awarded at this meet were similar to those awarded to the varsity men at F. and M.

Sunday morning was spent on the battlefield and the party continued on to York where they were entertained by Robert McPherson, of the Colonial Hotel, secretary of the tour association.

Departing from York with time for visits with hotel friends at Lancaster the trip originated in Philadelphia with David B. Provan, president of the tour and managing director of the Hotel Adelphi, entertaining at his hotel.

About twenty-five members made the entire trip while every member made at least a part. At some times the number was as high as fifty, but after reaching Harrisburg a number left the party and returned to their respective towns.

From the time the party entered Pennsylvania until they reached Gettysburg they were escorted by members of the state police.

David B. Provan, managing director of the Hotel Adelphi and president of the tour, said before his departure: "Although this tour was organized in 1917 this is the first time an official inspection was made of the entire route by all the members of the tour."

THE GETTYSBURG TIMES

The trip has been more than inspiring and I believe its object—that of selling the members on the tour so that they might sell the tour to others—has been accomplished. At any rate it has been of great benefit to us all individually and will be a big boost for the tour and all the towns on it. I want to thank the people of Gettysburg as well as all the other towns we visited for their hospitality. Our stay here was most pleasant and our trip around the town and over the battlefields most enjoyable. Horace Leland Wiggins, managing director of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, and a member of the board of governors of the tour, and who conceived the idea of having the members of the association make the trip, said: "This is the best tour in America today. We've had a trip of over five hundred miles and not a quarter of an inch of bad road. The scenery is wonderful—in fact unsurpassable, while the whole tour just abounds with places of historic importance. Truly it was within the lines of this tour that the history of the United States was made. "All the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Historical Tour needs is publicity and advertising not only alone as a tour but each section and town should not hesitate to tell the world about itself and the tour. There are thousands and thousands of people who have never been to Gettysburg and have little idea of what a wonderful place it really is who would come if they only knew what was in store for them. Here you have a wonderful town with the world's greatest battlefield; good hotels, unsurpassable scenic beauty, accessible from all points over perfect roads. All you need is the right kind of advertising and publicity and plenty of it. Our visit was most enjoyable and, needless to say, every member of our party is going away with a good impression of Gettysburg."

"Enough to live on—if he doesn't want to live too high. But is that all he is entitled to? Your friend—he waved a hand toward Verinder, puffing up the trail a hundred yards below—'draws millions of dollars in dividends from the work of these men. What does he do to earn it?'"

"You're a socialist," charged Joyce gayly. "Or is it an anarchist that believes such dreadful things?"

"Mr. Kilmeny doesn't quite believe all he says," suggested Moya quietly. "Don't you?" Behind Jack's quizzical smile there was a hint of earnestness.

"I believe that Dobyans Verinder is a parasite in Goldbanks. He gobbles up the product of others' toil."

Joyce flashed at him a swift retort. "Then if you believe that, you ought to be a highgrader yourself."

"Joyce," reproved Moya, aghast. "I mean, of course, in principle," her friend amended, blushing slightly at her own audacity.

Her impudence amused the miner. "Perhaps I am—in principle."

"But only in principle," she murmured, tilting a radiant challenge at him.

"Exactly—in principle," he agreed. There was humor in his saturnine face. Joyce ventured one daring step further. "But of course in practice—"

"You should have been a lawyer, Miss Seldon," he countered. "If you were, my reply would be that by advice of counsel I must decline to answer."

"Oh, by advice of counsel! Dear me," that sounds dreadfully legal, doesn't it, Moya? Isn't that what criminals say when—?"

"—When they don't want to give themselves away. I believe it is," he tossed back with the same lightness. "Before I make confession I shall want to know whether you are on my side—or Verinder's."

Under the steady look of his bold, possessive eyes the long silken lashes fell to the soft cheeks. Joyce understood the unvoiced demand that lay behind the obvious one. He had thrown down the gauntlet of battle. Was she for Verinder or for him? If he could have offered her one-half the advantages of his rival, her answer would not have been in doubt. But she knew she dared not marry a poor man, no matter how wildly his presence could set her pulses flying or how great her longing for him. Not the least intention of any romantic absurdity was in her mind. When the time came for choice she would go to Verinder and his millions. But she did not intend to let Jack Kilmeny go yet.

She lifted to him a face flushed and excited, answering apparently his words and not his thoughts. "I haven't decided yet. How could I tell till I hear what you have to say for yourself?"

"You couldn't find a more charming sister confessor for your sins," the captain told his cousin.

"I'll do my best," Joyce promised. Then, with a flash of friendly malice: "But I haven't had the experience of Moya. She is just perfect in the role. I know, because she hears all mine."

Moya flushed resentfully. She did not intend to set up for a prude, but she certainly did not mean to treat highgrading as if it were a joke. If Jack Kilmeny was innocent, why did he not indignantly deny the charge?

"Afraid I'll have to be excused," she said, a little stiffly.

"Miss Dwight doesn't approve of me," explained the miner. "If I confessed to her she would probably turn me over to the sheriff."

The girl's quick eyes flashed into his. "I don't approve of taking one that doesn't belong to one—if that's what you mean, Mr. Kilmeny."

Jack liked the flare of temper in her. She was very human in her impulses. At bottom, too, he respected the integrity of mind that refused to compromise with what she thought was wrong.

But no admission of this showed in his strong brown face. His morose eyes mocked her while he went into a whimsical argument to show that highgrading was really a virtue, since it tended to keep the rich from growing richer and the poor poorer. He wanted to know by what moral right Verinder owned the Mollie Gibson and the Never Quit any more than he did.

The mine owner, puffing from the exertions of the last bit of ascent, exclaimed indignantly: "Own 'em, by Joye! Doesn't a Johnny own what he buys and pays for?"

"You don't suppose that when God or Nature or the First Cause created that ore vein a million years ago He had Dobyans Verinder in mind as the owner," derided Kilmeny.

"That's all anarchistic rot, you know. Those mines are my property, at least a commanding interest. They're mine because I bought the shares. Government is founded on a respect for property rights."

"So I've observed," retorted Jack dryly. "I'd back that opinion, too, if I owned half of Goldbanks."

"I suppose Mr. Kilmeny's highgrading friends are superior to law. It isn't necessary for them to abide by the rules society has found best for its protection," Moya suggested.

The engaging smile of the accused rested upon Miss Dwight. "I met you and your friends in a motorcar yesterday. I'll bet that speedometer said twenty-five miles, but the town ordinance puts the speed limit at fifteen. What about that?"

"You know that's different. No moral question was involved. But when it comes to taking what belongs to another—well, I say that a thief is a thief."

"Right as a rivet, Miss Dwight. But you're begging the question. Does that ore belong to Dobyans Verinder any more than it does to—well, to Jack Kilmeny, say, for the sake of argument? I go down there and risk my life blasting it out. He—"

"But you don't," interrupted Moya. "Not today, perhaps—or yesterday. But I did last year and the year before."

"But I did last year and the year before," she murmured, tilting a radiant challenge at him.

"Exactly—in principle," he agreed. There was humor in his saturnine face. Joyce ventured one daring step further. "But of course in practice—"

HIGH TOSSERS WIN PENNANT

Defeat Lebanon For Western Division Scholastic League Title; Play For League Honors.

Turning in a substantial lead in the early frames, Gettysburg High School succeeded in defeating Lebanon High on the Playground here, Saturday afternoon, winning the title in the western division of the Central Pennsylvania Scholastic Baseball League. The score was 14 to 10. Gettysburg's Bullets piled up their runs in the early frames, and this was fortunate, for the visitors settled down as the game wore on, and started swatting fests, which boosted their tally.

By reason of this victory, the local high school plays the winner of the eastern division of the league here on June 6, for the championship honors. Their opponents will be either Reading or Easton.

14th Victory

Saturday's victory was the fourteenth consecutive triumph for the Maroon and White batters. "Big Jim" Tennant, who officiated on the mound, was effective in the opening frames, but weakened in the latter innings, and was given poor support.

He walked 11 Lebanon batters, striking out 12.

On Saturday morning, Gettysburg plays Lancaster High School in the last scheduled game of the season. The game will be waged on the Playground diamond and a large crowd is expected to be on hand to see the Bullets perform.

If Gettysburg defeats Lancaster, it will have won every one of the 15 scheduled contests this season, and hang up what is believed will be a record in scholastic baseball circles.

COLLEGE LOSES TO ST. MARY'S

Emmitsburg Tribe Blanks Local Collegians 7 to 0; Return Game Here June 8.

Mount St. Mary's College captured the annual baseball game Saturday at Emmitsburg from Gettysburg College by shutting out the locals, 7 to 0. Home runs by Abby and Kisloski featured the contest and gave the St. Mary's team a lead which the Bullets were unable to overtake.

Kerrigan and Kane twirled fine ball for the winners, holding their guests to seven scattered bingles of the singular variety.

Armor, who started for the Gettysburg Collegians, was touched in the fifth, sixth and seventh, and gave way to Rinehart in the seventh. The relief hurler held the Emmitsburg team in check for the remainder of the battle.

Both teams played excellent ball, contributing a number of fast, snappy plays. At several stages of the game the Bullets threatened to score on Kerrigan, but fast fielding cut down all chances and kept the losers scoreless.

Abby starred at the bat for the Mountaineers with two circuit clouts in four trips to the plate. Bonner also hit the ball hard with three bingles in four tries. Musselman and Craun were the big guns with the stick for the Gettysburgians. Three errors, two by St. Mary's and one by the Bullets, did not figure seriously in the scoring.

BULLETS TAKE 7 TO 5 BATTLE

Defeat Littlestown and Climb One Notch in League Standing; Arendtsville Loses 4 to 0.

Gettysburg's Adams County Baseball League representatives clubbed their way to a 7 to 5 victory over the Littlestown aggregation, Saturday afternoon in Littlestown and climbed one notch out of the cellar position in the league standing in their dash for pennant.

Moul, twirling for the Bullets, was effective in the pinches and turned back the Littlestown clubbers while his mates pounded out a lead that their opponents failed to overcome.

While Gettysburg was matching wits with Littlestown, the New Oxford tribesmen retained their hold on top position by blanking Arendtsville 4 to 0, at New Oxford. It was Arendtsville's second defeat of the season and the fourth victory for the league leaders.

McSherrystown, with one coveted forfeited game from Gettysburg, retained its sharing-honors with New Oxford for a clean slate by trouncing the Bendersville-Aspers combination 13 to 3. The St. Mary's clan has also a claim on the top position with three victories and a forfeited game from the Bullets.

Midway and Biglerville staged a hotly-contested thirteen inning tilt, with Midway emerging on the long end of a 4 to 3 score. It was one of the hardest fought games of the season and Biglerville at one stage of the contest had victory in its grasp 3 to 2. Midway spurted and overcame the lead in the closing frame by one tally.

A MISTAKEN IDEA

In looking at the pictures and at the statues of famous men the idea is forced upon one that great things are always done by old men.

This is unfortunate. The young men of today are unconsciously led to have less confidence in themselves, and the rest of us, old and young, also are led to underestimate the capacity and the judgment of young men. That is, the man this side of forty.

In other words, an undue premium is placed on whiskers and white hair.

Generally, the achievements for which famous men are noted were accomplished in the full bloom of manhood. After they have done their big work these men continue to live and to gather fame. About the time they are ready to die they are done in oil, and after they are dead they are chiseled in stone or cast in bronze, the sculptor using a "death mask," or the last photograph, as a model.

Future generations gaze at these busts, resembling Santa Claus, and it appears to them that the world's wisdom is the monopoly of old age.

The same error creeps into biography, because we remember a man as we last knew him. A contemporary writes a book and ninety per cent of the picture is of the last ten years of the subject's life. It would be far more interesting to know how he lived and worked between the ages of twenty and forty, when he was laying the foundations of his career and probably scaling the heights of achievement.

We recently saw an oil painting of John D. Rockefeller, by Sargent. Rockefeller retired from business before he was seventy, and his most active years were then twenty years behind him.

The picture of Rockefeller that future generations should see should have been painted twenty or thirty years ago. Then we would see the man who did a big job—now we see an old man who plays golf and eats bread and milk.

Italian queen has ordered ladies to wear trains. Couldn't do it in this country. Would be worn out first day.

Just Folks

THE HOME

The roof is humble and the walls are plain.

A few bright roses in the garden sway,

"A little house or pretty," strangers say.

A shelter against wind and snow and rain,

Like every house, a prey to grief and pain

And all the hurts love cannot keep away;

Death has it marked to visit some sad day

When love and skill and prayer shall be in vain.

But this, our home, holds all that life can give,

Both good and bad are judged within this door,

The things we seek and strive for while we live

Are good if home glows brighter than before.

Here love shuts out the world defying all!

From God, not from ourselves, must sorrows fall.

FARMERS HIRE WOMEN HELPERS

Insufficient Supply of Labor in Northeastern Pennsylvania Causes Farmers to Seek Women Helpers.

Conyngham, Pa.—Women and child again are being hired by farmers throughout northeastern Pennsylvania, due to an insufficient supply of labor. Decrease in prices of farm products which resulted in a decrease in farm wages has been assigned by many farmers as cause for the scarcity of men workers.

Farmers in this section have been favored with good weather this spring with the exception of several cool periods which retarded slightly the growth of early vegetables. Rains have been sufficiently frequent to keep the ground in good condition but not heavy enough to interfere with plowing.

Many of the farmers are turning to mechanical motive power, discarding their wagons for motor trucks and substituting tractors for much of the work formerly done with horses.

ACADEMY NINE WINS

Gettysburg Academy tossers won another baseball game Saturday, defeating Harrisburg Academy by the score 13 to 6. Smuck, of the Academy nine, hit a home run that was one of the hardest hit balls ever sent over the Harrisburg Academy's field.

86 YEAR OLD MAN 'FOLLOWS' PLOW

Aged Millville Farmer Still Hard at Work After 77 Years Laboring on Farms.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—Approaching his 86th birthday anniversary, Joseph Kitchen, of Millville, still is following the plow, just as he has for more than 77 years—and with no thought of quitting.

He was nine years old when he first was allowed to hold the plow handles by himself. He liked the experience then and he declares he enjoys it as much today as he did in his boyhood days. To his continued activity during the past three-quarters of a century he attributes the rugged health which he now enjoys.

Mr. Kitchen, his neighbors say, looks no older now than he did twenty years ago, although his hair is white. A tanned and weather beaten face, however, help in hiding the marks of age.

There was one interruption in Mr. Kitchen's farming record, a brief absence during which he served in the army during the Civil War. That over he returned to the farm. A few years ago he sold his property to his son-in-law and, although he does not feel compelled now to work unless he feels like it, he admits he usually feels like it.

"It wouldn't seem quite right for me to quit," he said, "because I enjoy the work and, then, help is so scarce."

Conditions have undergone more than one change since the days before the war when he started following the plow. There is little about the farms of the present day reminding of those earlier days, Mr. Kitchen said. Methods of work have changed completely more than once since that time. The crops themselves, however, have undergone little change. Wheat, oats, hay and corn, then as now, were the principal farm crops of that vicinity. Methods of raising them have improved and the production is better, but there are more pests attacking the crops of various kinds now than there were then.

Shippensburg To Dedicate Tablet

Harrisburg.—A bronze tablet giving the approximate date of the settling of Shippensburg and bearing an outline of the leading events in the life of Edward Shippen, Philadelphia, for whom the town was named, is to be dedicated on borough property, June 6, by the State Historical Commission. This will be the first town to be formally marked by the commission, which is cooperating with the Colonial Dames of America, chapter No. 2, Philadelphia, and the Elise Willing Blach Memorial Fund, Philadelphia.

The tablet designed by Paul P. Cret and written by Albert Cook Myers, secretary of the commission, bears the inscription that the town was founded about 1733 and named in honor of Edward Shippen, merchant, mayor and justice of Philadelphia and paymaster of Forbes' expedition to relieve Fort Pitt.

Weds Ex-Hubby

MRS. LAURA M. CURTIS

Mrs. Laura M. Curtis, prominent in Washington and society, surprised her friends by jilting wealthy Harrison Williams, a New York banker, to re-marry James F. Curtis, a Boston lawyer, from whom she obtained "a Paris divorce" a year ago. Mrs. Curtis, daughter of William R. Merriam, former Governor of Minnesota, broke her engagement to Theron E. Catlin, Missouri Congressman, under similar circumstances in 1911 to wed Curtis.

MURDER SUSPECT IS APPREHENDED

(By Associated Press.)

Newburyport, Mass., May 25.—Harry A. Kirby, sought in connection with the murder of Miss Aida Heyward, the shooting of Mrs. Emma Towns and the burning of their cottage in Winthrop, Maine, was arrested here today.

When taken into custody by police at a boarding house in this city, Kirby admitted that he was the man sought by Maine authorities but denied any connection with the killing of Miss Heyward.

He said he had found the woman's body in a cottage and later had moved it to the cottage which he was occupying. He gave no explanation of his reason for doing this.

Under continuous questioning Kirby later wavered in some of his details. He said that instead of finding the body in a cottage he had come across it in the woods.

Squire Hammers Laments Passing of the Old-fashioned Religion

MARSH CREEK HOMES OF SIXTY YEARS AGO.

(By S. S. W. Hammers)

Every Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday night, the farm homes of Marsh Creek Valley, old and young, went from house to prayer meetings and song services.

All the homes were the places of songs of Zion, the Psalms of David, those glorious psalms never so much prized as then; all this ascended from every place where meetings were appointed. We remember, in the still summer nights, strains of heavenly music seemed to float on the tremulous air. How busy our imaginations became! And no wonder. We would pause on the highway to catch the sweet sounds, now soft and low, rising and fall, and now ringing like the chimes of church bells. We often thought the angels were above and around us. We thought we heard the festive chimes of heaven, the pealing of the bells in the City of God, as the heavenly host proclaimed the triumphs which our Lord was achieving over his foes on the earth.

We remember going to a home one Sunday evening where a large crowd was gathered. The old mother of the home was shouting: "Such times, such glorious times, the Lord indeed is in our midst!" Prayers issued from lips that never moved in audible prayers before. Such prayers, so rich in Scripture languages, so fervent that icy hearts were melted as if by fire from heaven. Men and women prayed, father followed son, or a sister a brother. The farm servants in the fields, the women servants in the homes spent their time during the day in beautiful hymns. But what has become of all the old time religion of the homes? Not one such meeting in the county!

Christ said: "Whosoever, therefore, will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God." Instead of the people showing their love for the Christ and his religion, they show their love for the world by following the fashions and customs of the same. Now, in place of prayer meetings in the homes, the card tables, dances, clubs, and all worldly and popular amusements provide as much fun as possible for church members and such meetings are relished a thousand times more than any prayer meeting or song service. The dances and card parties, with all their loose moralities, have made their inroads into nearly all homes and driven out the family worship, and are today making their inroads into the sacred inclosure of the churches.

The religion of the Protestant churches is fast going out of existence. Let any preacher in Gettysburg inform his worldly members to come out of the worldly kingdom and unite with Christ's kingdom, so that they may be known as living Apostles,—known and read by all men. We have $5.00 to wager that before the church members would give up the worldly dances, card tables, clubs, lodges, secret societies, they would all leave the churches. All these worldly pleasures draw them with far greater force than does the beauty of holiness, or the social means of grace.

Dancing is an abomination of the land, its influences are demoralizing and degrading, not counting it as the insidious enemy of Christianity and good morals. It leads its votaries to barbarism and perdition.

It is very shocking to notice the abandoned libertine, the drunkard, gambler, and the church member meet together on terms of social equality. Vice is a great leveler. The conditions of church members today (we are none) is a little religious, not enough to hurt, a little peculiar, but not enough to transform us from the worldly kingdom into Christ's kingdom. Christians go to church one day, next to the dances, card tables, clubs, and all worldly and popular amusements. Yes, we can be church members and consort with men and women in all kinds of worldliness, then act as elder, deacon or preacher on the Lord's day.

How many church members can stand true in the time of trials? Judas betrayed Him, Peter denied Him, Thomas doubted Him, and Christians today have all forsaken Him and fled, abject cowards, poor helpless sheep without a shepherd.

WOOL SEAMLESS RUGS

Before Spell

Colonel John Coolidge, father of the President, returned to his Plymouth (Vt.) home after his examination by specialists in Boston feeling in vigorous health, he said. This photo was snapped during his daily round of exercise. It was shortly after this photo was taken that he suddenly collapsed on a road during a walk, and was carried into a nearby home, unconscious. He revived some minutes later.

In Love Tragedy

Fred H. Brown, son of a former Mayor of Rochester, Minn., faced trial in Los Angeles on a charge of violating the Mann act in bringing Bessie Pritchett, eighteen, from St. Louis to Los Angeles. Although she expected to become a mother, she steadfastly refused to marry Brown, despite pressure brought to bear by welfare workers.

Germany's Ex-Kings Still Able to Ward off "Wolf"

Berlin.—German royalty is still far from being impoverished. The present annual income of ex-sovereigns of the German states, while perforce considerably smaller than that of pre-war days, is still to be considered munificent compared to the salary of the president of the German Reich.

To refute the frequent reproach that a republic is an especially expensive form of government and that, consequently, taxpayers fared better during the days of the empire, the Berliner Morgenpost has compiled a list of the comparative incomes of German sovereigns before and after 1918.

The ex-king of Prussia had the highest income by far of all the ruling potentates of the empire. His fixed annual salary amounted to 18,000,000 marks (about $4,500,000). In his capacity as German kaiser he drew a further income of 3,000,000 marks, or $750,000 for running expenses. But the actual expenses of the imperial court were defrayed from the Prussian civil list. Whenever the "savings" of this civil list fell below 1,000,000 marks, the treasury of the royal household insisted upon an increase of the civil list.

The Morgenpost claims that, according to this system, William II was enabled, during the 30 years of his reign, to increase his private fortune from 180,000 marks, at the time of his throne ascension in 1888, to the imposing sum of 18,000,000 marks, or $4,500,000. Special expenses that cropped up were promptly covered by the sale of real estate, ostensibly the property of the crown, as when, for example, the large plot, today the site of the state library, was sold to the Berlin municipality for the sum of 8,000,000 marks. This money was utilized for building the new royal stable. Since William II abdicated he has received moneys from the Prussian state and the Reich aggregating 13,000,000 marks, or $3,000,000. The largest payment was that accruing from the sale to the German republic of the palace in Wilhelm Strasse—today the Executive Mansion—for which $2,000,000 was realized. In addition, the members of the Hohenzollern family receive a total annuity of 600,000 marks, pending the definite settlement of their claims. The other German sovereigns, while receiving much less, are still very comfortably situated and notwithstanding their abdication have continued to live as millionaires, for the settlement with their respective states proved an excellent business for them. Moreover, today they may dispose of their fortune as they please, unhindered by any statutes of duties of representation.

The really hard thing about making both ends meet is there are about a million ends.

Eight years ago the United States entered the war. We'll let you know when we get out.

We are afraid for a real rainbow to see the spring styles. It might turn all green with envy.
